

In response to the BPL question, as an amateur radio operator, I feel that much more study is warranted before any power company can utilize this technology. There are many question yet to be answered, regarding the potential for an incredible amount of interference to the HF allocation for the Amateur Service. Please emphasize the need for more research, on both sides of the question, before issuing a ruling.

Respectfully,

Jonathan Reynolds, WR5D